

NEWS

Sydney launch of the ANU Centre for Climate Law and Policy

The Sydney launch of the ANU Centre for Climate Law and Policy was held on Monday 23 June 2008. The event was hosted by Baker & McKenzie Lawyers, founding sponsor of the Centre.

An inaugural lecture by James Cameron, founder and Vice Chairman of Climate Change Capital marked the occasion, and drew an audience of more than fifty people including many from government, business and industry such as Morgan Chas, Colonial First State Property, Origin Energy and Merrill Lynch.

From the left: Professor Michael Coper, Dean of the ANU College of Law; James Cameron, Vice Chairman of Climate Change Capital; Martijn Wilder, Head of Climate Law Practice at Baker & McKenzie; and Professor Tim Bonyhady, Director of the ANU Centre for Climate Law and Policy.

The lecture emphasised the critical role that law - both international and national, public and private - had to play in addressing climate change.

The Canberra launch of the Centre was held on Friday 6 June 2008, and opened by The Hon. Peter Garrett MP.

For more information about the Centre, please visit the website at <http://law.anu.edu.au/cclp>

Above: Audience at the launch in Sydney