Ruddock under pressure

FEDERAL Attorney-General Philip Ruddock's daughter Kirsty Ruddock spoke at a climate change conference at the Australian National University yesterday. She had brought her three-week-old daughter, she told the audience, adding the baby had been given a climate change book by her grandparents. Kirsty Ruddock, principal solicitor with the Environmental Defenders Office, said she was looking forward to seeing the baby's grandparents read the book aloud. The Attorney-General is a self-professed environmentalist (as he is an avowed member of Amnesty International), although his views on climate change remain murky.
