

Moving towards an Arms Trade Treaty

You are invited to a public event

Hosted by: The ANU Centre for European Studies, the Centre for International and Public Law, and the ACT Red Cross International Humanitarian Law Committee

From 11-14 July 2011, the international community met in New York to discuss how to regulate the global arms market to prevent weapons reaching the hands of criminals, insurgents, human rights abusers and those violating international humanitarian law. The ultimate aim is to have in place by 2012 a strong arms trade treaty to control the international trade of conventional firearms. The event will be in the form of a panel with three speakers discussing the following aspects of the treaty:

- Chair

Matthew Zagor, Red Cross International Humanitarian Law Committee in the ACT

- The problem

Dr Stephanie Koorey, Adjunct Research Associate at Monash University

- The solution

Jesse Clarke, Legal Adviser, UK Foreign & Commonwealth Office (currently with the Office of International Law, Attorney-General's Department)

- The process

Netta Goussac, Office of International Law at the Attorney-General's Department

- A review

Kelisiana Thynne, Legal Advisor, International Committee of the Red Cross
