

Informal seminar presented on the Report of the Inquiry into certain Australian companies in relation to the UN Oil-for-Food Programme

The Centre for Commercial Law and the Centre for International and Public Law presented an informal seminar on the Report of the Inquiry into Certain Australian Companies in relation to the UN Oil-for-Food Programme (the Cole Inquiry Report), on 12 December 2006 to an audience of ANU academics. A panel of speakers commented on the findings of the Report in relation to their areas of expertise:

Kevin Boreham – international law
Professor Stephen Bottomley – corporate governance
Daniel Stewart – public law
Vivien Holmes – legal ethics for in-house lawyers.

The panel generated a lively discussion with the well-informed audience and was successful in its aim of providing a informed commentary and prompt response to a very topical issue.

Image (from left to right): Kevin Boreham, Professor Stephen Bottomley, Daniel Stewart, Vivien Holmes and Pauline Ridge.