

Inaugural Distinguished Visiting Mentor

Professor Stephen Legomsky, Charles F Nagel Professor of International and Comparative Law at Washington University in St Louis, will be the first Distinguished Visiting Mentor in the ANU College of Law, under an innovative scheme introduced by the College in 2006.

Professor Legomsky, who is a world-renowned expert in immigration and refugee law and a leading scholar and teacher in the areas of torts, criminal law, international law, human rights and law reform, will visit ANU from 15 to 19 May 2006. His brief is to mentor colleagues in the ANU College of Law by reading and commenting on their work, talking about his research and approach to scholarship in a seminar for faculty and graduate students, connecting colleagues with relevant research networks, and having informal interactions. Professor Legomsky's visit is seen as the beginning of a web of ongoing relationships, and is sponsored and funded by the College.

Further information: Dr Fiona Wheeler, Director of Research, ANU College of Law
