

Congratulations to the first Australian Migration Law & Practice graduates at ANU

The first two cohorts of students undertaking the Graduate Certificate in Australian Migration Law & Practice have graduated at the ANU graduation ceremony in July. Most of the students completed their certificate in one semester, giving them the qualification to work as Australian migration agents. The ANU College of Law has seen a dramatic increase in enrolments in this popular program, which is open to both lawyers and non-lawyers. Forty students graduated in July and it is expected that this number will double for the December graduation.
