

INTERNSHIPS 2011/12

The NSW Law Reform Commission invites:

- law students in their final year;
- law students entering their final year in 2012; and
- recent law graduates

to apply for legal internships during the summer university vacation, 2011/12.

Interns work as volunteers on a full-time basis. The Commission does not provide any remuneration or financial assistance to interns.

An internship at the Law Reform Commission provides an opportunity to work closely with the Commissioners and law reform staff and contribute directly to the development of proposals for law reform. Depending on the reference this could include undertaking research, contributing to drafting consultation documents, assisting with consultation processes, or helping draft reports. The Commission credits the contribution of interns in its published papers. The Commission seeks to provide a stimulating environment and a varied experience for interns.

Interns should be available to work 8-12 weeks full-time commencing in December 2011 or January 2012. Applicants are invited to indicate their availability when applying.

Information about the Commission is available on our website:

Your application

Successful applicants will:

- have a strong academic record
- demonstrate well-developed legal research and writing skills
- demonstrate an ability to contribute to a team environment

Applications should contain a statement outlining how they meet these three criteria, your curriculum vitae and your academic record.

Applications should be forwarded to the Commission at lrc\_intern@agd.nsw.gov.au.

If you have questions you can email or call Abi Paramaguru on (02) 8061 9263 or abi\_paramaguru@agd.nsw.gov.au.

Closing date

Applications close Friday, 30 September 2011.

Interviews for short-listed candidates will take place around mid-October 2011.

Other internship opportunities

The LRC also offers winter internship opportunities. Please check our website after January 2012 for more information about winter internship applications.
