Undergraduate Law 2022
Welcome from the Dean

The Australian National University (ANU) is unique in Australia. Ranked 29th in the world by QS and based in the nation’s capital city, the University attracts leading academics and outstanding students from Australia and around the world.

For more than 60 years, ANU College of Law has been the educational home to some of the most remarkable people from across the world: visionaries, influential leaders, researchers and individuals creating impact and social change nationally, regionally and globally.

This, coupled with our role as the national university, means we have a responsibility to be ambitious, bold and transformative in our approaches to teaching and learning. We are poised to provide the next generation of leaders and global citizens with the skills required for the challenges and careers of the future.

Our campus is located at the heart of the national capital, alongside foreign missions, the Australian Parliament, other national institutions, research organisations and government departments. As Australia’s national law school, our researchers have a special relationship with the Commonwealth Government, providing expert advice to Australia’s leaders and decision makers, to ensure the advancement of the nation.

We are looking for people who find true joy in learning, in following an idea to see where it will lead because it is exciting. We seek people with passion, who want to go beyond established boundaries and forge new paths to the future.

If you would like the opportunity to be extraordinary, then ANU will nurture you to achieve your potential.

I look forward to welcoming you to ANU in 2022.

Professor Sally Wheeler
OBE, MRIA, FAcSS, FAAL
Deputy Vice-Chancellor for International Strategy and Dean of ANU College of Law

World-class experts

At ANU you will be guided by some of the world’s brightest minds, have access to world-class learning facilities and enjoy opportunities that are unique to studying law in the nation’s capital — the city where laws and policies are made.

Associate Professor Wayne Morgan
Associate Dean (Education)

If you want to change the world, study law. If you want to learn at one of the world’s leading law schools, so that you have the knowledge, skills and ethical judgment to bring about change with creative solutions to the world’s biggest policy and legal challenges, join us at the ANU College of Law. As teachers and researchers at the national law school, we bring together the inspiration and expertise to guide the leaders of tomorrow.

Wayne Morgan is the Associate Dean (Education) of the ANU College of Law and is internationally recognised as a pioneer in the field of queer legal theory. He undertakes interdisciplinary research focused on social justice and law reform which has contributed to a number of test cases before tribunals and courts at the national and international level, including cases before the Australian High Court and the UN Human Rights Committee.

Dr Ntina Tzouvala

My teaching is based on the idea that only solid theorising can help us truly understand legal doctrine, but also that attention to the details, the ‘boring’ bits of the law is the best way into the law’s ‘secrets’. I try to run an inclusive classroom and to teach a wide range of materials both in terms of opinion and in terms of identities that have so far been marginalised in the study of the law.

Ntina Tzouvala is a senior lecturer at the ANU College of Law focusing on the political economy, history and theory of international law. She is especially interested in historical materialism, deconstruction, feminist and queer legal theory. She is a member of the editorial collective of the Third World Approaches to International Law Review and in early 2020, she was appointed Senior Adviser to the UN Special Rapporteur on the Right to Food.
Dr Cassandra Steer FHEA

We pride ourselves on research-led teaching at the ANU College of Law. Students have the opportunity learn from some of the country’s leading experts in their fields, and engage with legal issues as they are unfolding. This is as important for students as it is for us as academics. I am incredibly lucky to be able to teach new course content that is built directly on my research and policy work in space law and space security.

Cassandra Steer is a senior lecturer at the ANU College of Law and mission specialist at the ANU Institute of Space. She specialises in space law, space security and international law. She has been a consultant to the Australian Department of Defence, the Canadian Judge Advocate General’s Office and the US Department of Defense on these issues. She has begun research on integrating lessons from Indigenous governance into space governance, and has created new courses delivered through the ANU College of Law and the National Security College.

Associate Professor Anthony Hopkins

Many of our students come to law school because they care about social justice and they see the study of law as a foundation for making a difference. At ANU, we recognise, celebrate and foster this motivation. Our clinical and internship courses give students the opportunity to put their legal learning into action, experience the positive potential of law and develop highly sought-after, real-world legal skills.

Anthony Hopkins is an Associate Professor at the ANU College of Law and Special Magistrate of the ACT Magistrates Court. Dr Hopkins began his career as a criminal defence lawyer in Alice Springs at the Central Australian Aboriginal Legal Aid Service. He was called to the Bar in 2010 and continues to practise as a barrister with a focus on sentencing and appellate criminal cases.
Global careers start here

When you graduate with a law degree from ANU, you become part of a highly connected global network of alumni that spans 100+ countries.

Our graduates are among the most employable in Australia and around the world, and go on to become leaders in their home countries and on the world stage. Our top international law alumni communities are located in the United Kingdom, the United States, Hong Kong, Singapore and Malaysia.

Internships, clinical placements and study abroad opportunities are available in various locations throughout Australia, Asia and the Pacific, the United Kingdom, Europe and the United States.

- Internships: 8 international internships; 7 domestic internships (credit and non-credit)
- International short courses: 5 (Indonesia, Japan, Myanmar, Switzerland, USA)
- Student competitions: 8 international competitions; 7 domestic competitions
- Clinical courses: 9 domestic clinical courses; 1 international clinical course (Myanmar)
What you can study

Whether you study law on its own or combine it with another discipline as part of an ANU flexible double degree, the ANU Bachelor of Laws (Honours) will equip you with the legal knowledge and practical skills required for success in a diverse range of fields.

Single degree
4 years full-time or part-time equivalent
If you aspire to pursue a career in legal practice, then a single specialised qualification in law is your fast-track to becoming a lawyer.

Flexible double degree
5 years full-time or part-time equivalent
A flexible double degree will allow you to satisfy your curiosity and keep your career options open. This study option allows you to tailor your studies to perfectly qualify you for your dream job, or you can follow your head and your heart and combine a very practical degree with another in a field you are passionate about.

Whatever approach you take, you’ll graduate with two qualifications and employers knocking down your door.

Benefits of a flexible double degree
- Study two Bachelor degrees at the same time and graduate with two qualifications.
- Two qualifications mean a clear advantage when applying for jobs.
- It takes less time than studying two undergraduate degrees separately.
- You will have the same full-time workload as a student undertaking just one Bachelor degree.

Bachelor of Laws (Honours)

The ANU Bachelor of Laws (Honours) is an internationally recognised, world-class undergraduate law degree. As a student at Australia’s national law school, you’ll gain a unique perspective on how laws are made, applied and reformed.

Duration

Single degree:
4 years full-time or part-time equivalent

Flexible double degree:
5 years full-time or part-time equivalent

Entry requirements

For 2022, admission is based on meeting the minimum ATAR requirement of 97 (IB 39) or an equivalent rank derived from the following qualifications:

- An Australian Year 12 qualification or international equivalent, or
- A completed Associate Diploma, Associate Degree, AQF Diploma, Diploma, AQF Advanced Diploma, Graduate Certificate or international equivalent, or
- At least one standard full-time year (1.0 FTE) in a single program of degree level study at an Australian higher education institution or international equivalent, or
- An approved tertiary preparation course unless subsequent study is undertaken.

In a flexible double degree, you must meet the requirements for each degree.

Admission to practice

Completing an ANU Bachelor of Laws (Honours) and the requisite practical legal training qualifies you to practise law anywhere in Australia and in some other jurisdictions, including New Zealand, India, Singapore, Vietnam, Malaysia and Hong Kong.
What you’ll study

Combining the theoretical and practical expertise of leading academics and legal practitioners, the Bachelor of Laws (Honours) provides students with an in-depth knowledge of the role and function of law, and an advanced understanding of how law influences and impacts almost every aspect of our world.

In addition to equipping you with a deep comprehension of law and the contexts in which it operates, the Bachelor of Laws (Honours) encourages you to exercise critical thinking and judgement. These newly acquired skills and understandings will allow you to generate solutions to complex legal and policy problems with growing intellectual independence.

Your learning will take place in a global environment with international programs that allow students to travel to Asia, Europe and the United States. You will be offered opportunities to gain practical experience during your degree through internships, clinical placements, and negotiation and mooting competitions.

The honours component of the program is embedded in the degree structure to improve your career prospects and provide you with a strong foundation for future postgraduate study.

Careers

The ANU Bachelor of Laws (Honours) has global recognition. Our graduates enter traditional legal roles such as a solicitor or barrister, as well as roles in management, politics, the public service, business, commerce and technology and communications.

Degree structure

You can study the Bachelor of Laws (Honours) on its own over 4 years or combined with another discipline as part of a flexible double degree over 5 years.

Specialisations:
- Corporate and Commercial Law
- International and Comparative Law
- Law Reform, Environmental and Social Justice
- Public Law

Tiger Lin
Bachelor of Laws (Hons)/Politics, Philosophy and Economics

“What I love about studying law at ANU are the abundant opportunities to deepen my knowledge. On a practical level, I was given the opportunity to complete an internship with Clifford Chance, one of the largest global firms in Hong Kong, as part of my law internship course, through which I researched and co-authored a book chapter on international arbitration.

“The strong culture of research is also something that appeals to me, and makes ANU College of Law one of the best law schools in the country. There have been so many opportunities add depth to my degree through working as a research assistant or volunteering as a student editor of the Federal Law Review.

“Finally, it is hard to go past our beautiful campus, which sets a relaxed and peaceful vibe that is truly conducive to studying.”

Madeleine Lezon
Bachelor of International Security Studies/Laws (Hons)

“At ANU, there is always something happening. It’s Australia’s leading university and as a result some of the country’s most unique minds come to study, learn and present here.

“The access to government has been eye-opening and has provided me with a fantastic advocacy toolbox. Further, the lecturers and convenors are some of the best in their fields, and aren’t afraid to point out issues of justice when they arise. I love the energy of ANU, and the ability to fill every moment with something exciting.

“As a student from regional Victoria, I have truly felt comfortable in the ‘bush capital’ of Canberra in a way I never would have in one of the larger cities.”
Alumni career outcomes

Your ANU Law degree will open doors to exciting career opportunities across Australia and around the world.

Jennifer Robinson
BAsSt/LLB (Hons) '06
Barrister at Doughty Street Chambers in London

A passionate commitment to human rights is the common thread throughout Jennifer’s studies and career. An ANU University Medallist, Jennifer went on to become a Rhodes Scholar. While at Oxford she chaired the Law Faculty’s pro bono postgraduate organisation, Oxford Pro Bono Publico (OPBP), which provides research assistance on major human rights cases around the world.

Jennifer has fought a number of cases as a volunteer for the Institute for Advocacy and Study of Human Rights (Elsham), a human rights organisation in West Papua, Indonesia. In 2020, she represented Amber Heard in Johnny Depp’s defamation action against The Sun newspaper in the UK and helped fight attempts to extradite long-term client Julian Assange to the US.

In addition to social and climate justice, Jennifer is a committed mentor and advocate for public school education. To that end, she has launched a scholarship program with other prominent people who, like herself, came through the state education system.
Xiao He (Helen) Zhang
BAsSt/LLB (Hons) ‘10
Consul (Political/Economic) at the Australian Consulate-General in Hong Kong

Helen's law and Asian Studies degrees at ANU have been invaluable for her diplomatic career where she is able to use her extensive knowledge of international law and foreign affairs. Early in her career at the Department of Foreign Affairs and Trade, she had the opportunity to travel to Beijing to be part of Australia’s negotiating team on the Australia-China Free Trade Agreement. Her Mandarin skills, refined at ANU, were a valuable asset. Her Honours thesis on cyber warfare and international law, supervised by ANU Law Professor Donald Rothwell FAAL, laid important groundwork for the issues she currently deals with.

Kieran Pender
BA (Hons) ‘16, LLB (Hons) ‘18
Senior lawyer, Human Rights Law Centre

Kieran joined the Human Rights Law Centre in 2020. He works to uphold the democratic freedoms of all Australians, with a focus on protecting whistleblowers, defending free speech and ending mass surveillance.

Previously, Kieran was a senior legal advisor with the International Bar Association’s (IBA) Legal Policy & Research Unit in London. There, he led the IBA’s work on whistleblower protections and authored an international study exposing bullying and sexual harassment in the legal profession, embarking on a global tour to advocate positive change.

Kieran is also an accomplished journalist who writes regularly on human rights, free speech and sports. In 2021, he was embedded with Australian Olympic team in Tokyo, Japan.
Clinical courses

Clinical courses allow you to engage with real clients, real problems and real deadlines in a real-world environment. Clinical placements may be undertaken in a community agency, community legal centre or non-government organisation where you will get the opportunity to explore law reform and social justice issues relevant to that field of practice.

Myanmar Clinic

Offered in partnership with Bridges Across Borders South East Asia Community Legal Education, this course includes a work placement in Myanmar. Gain practical experience in a developing country through the delivery of community legal education sessions delivered to Myanmar law teachers and students. During this course, you will get to see first-hand the legal and social justice issues arising in a country.

Legal Education for True Justice: Indigenous Perspectives and Deep Listening on Country

Based in Alice Springs in the Northern Territory, this course presents principles and tools to support reappraisal and future leadership to better address legal and societal dimensions of justice, rights and empowerment for First Nations peoples.

Prison Legal Literacy Clinic

During this course, you will work with other students to deliver interactive legal literacy sessions to a cohort of detainees at the Alexander Maconochie Centre (AMC), the only adult prison in the ACT. Topics are chosen by detainees and are as diverse as detainee interests, ranging from parole to family law. You will explore social justice and law reform issues in relation to detainee experiences.
Youth Law Clinic
During this course, you will undertake a clinical placement in the Youth Law Centre, a non-profit legal service for ACT youth aged 12–25 years. You will gain hands-on experience in a community legal practice environment, provide legal assistance to young people under the supervision of practising solicitors, and explore social justice and law reform issues in relation to youth legal needs in the ACT.

Environmental Law Clinic
During this course, you will undertake a clinical placement at the Environmental Defenders Office in the ACT under the supervision of practising solicitors. You will gain practical legal skills in environmental and planning law. You will also have the opportunity to explore law reform issues relating to environmental justice and consider the role of a lawyer in this field of practice.

International Law Clinic
During this course, you will undertake a work placement at a government agency or non-government organisation (NGO). You will gain practical legal experience applying international law to real-world issues in an agency or organisation that is active on international law issues.

Community Law Clinic
During this course, you will undertake a clinical placement at Canberra Community Law, a community legal centre for low-income and disadvantaged people in the ACT. You will gain hands-on experience in a community legal practice environment, provide legal information and undertake casework under the supervision of practising solicitors.

Public Interest Law Clinic
During this course, you will undertake a work placement at an ACT community agency. You will gain practical legal skills in public interest law and get to critically consider legal practice approaches and the role of lawyers in relation to individual clients and client groups.

Varshini Viswanath
Bachelor of International Relations/Laws (Hons)

“What I enjoy most about ANU is its size. It boasts a beautiful, green campus with historical and modern buildings. At the same time, it is compact and easy to navigate. But most importantly, the ratio of students to staff makes it so every student can feel like they can get help, be recognised for their accomplishments, and feel like they belong.

“Canberra is like the ANU of Australia—an important city, but with the comforts of a small town. It is easier to feel like a small fish in a lake instead of a small fish in a daunting ocean. As an international student, coming to ANU did not feel as intimidating because of these perks.”
At ANU, you’ll be warmly welcomed into a safe, inclusive and collaborative environment that facilitates immersion and offers a strong sense of togetherness and community spirit.

Our proximity to the High Court of Australia, Parliament House, Commonwealth courts and federal agencies offers unparalleled access to legal practitioners, members of the judiciary and government policymakers, many of whom are ANU Law alumni.

Canberra offers a different cultural experience to other Australian cities and is incredibly easy to get around — the city has the shortest commute times of any major Australian city and a newly opened light-rail network.

Most liveable city

Canberra is one of the world’s most liveable cities, ranking first for quality of life ahead of Sydney and Melbourne.

2021 Numbeo Quality of Life Index

Safest

Canberra is considered one of the safest cities in Australia with one of the lowest crime rates.

Global community

A city of just over 411,000 people with more than 27 per cent of our residents born overseas, Canberra is a multicultural city with a strong sense of community.
