Traversing divides:
A symposium in honour of Deborah Cass

Friday 14 August 2015

Springbank Room Crawford Building #132, Lennox Crossing, The Australian National University

This symposium draws together academics from around the globe to reflect on Deborah’s scholarship and contributions to public law and international law, and how they might influence current controversies.

Speakers will include Professor Tony Anghie (University of Utah), Professor Hilary Charlesworth (The Australian National University), Jennifer Clarke, Professor Kerry Rittich (University of Toronto), Professor Kim Rubenstein (The Australian National University) and Associate Professor Margaret Young (Melbourne Law School) and will conclude with reflections by Professor Gerry Simpson (Melbourne Law School).

The views expressed in this event are those of the presenter and do not necessarily represent the views of The Australian National University.

Hosted by
Centre for International Governance and Justice
College of Asia and the Pacific
Centre for International & Public Law
ANU College of Law

RSVP online by Wednesday 12 August 2015 at law.anu.edu.au/conferences/traversing-divides
T 02 6125 1096
This event is free and open to the public