Intern, Legal and Corporate Affairs, Microsoft Corporation, Singapore

January - May 2015

Working on a variety of matters with the Government Affairs team such as providing inputs and drafting industry submissions on policy issues in the Asia-Pacific region concerning IT services and electronic devices, including cloud computing; reviewing a variety of legal issues concerning IT services/products including reviewing trade policy and WTO law issues, competition law and IP issues in South East Asia; and drafting internal memos on trade policy issues in Indonesia.

Intern, Government Relations, eBay Inc., Singapore

May 2014 - August 2014

Drafting policy submissions on e-commerce and e-payments within the ASEAN region, and participating in various industry association meetings and meetings with public officials; funded by the Government Relations team for a year-long project for assessing the prospects of harmonization of e-payment regulations in the ASEAN region.

Lecturer, National Law School of India University, Bangalore, India

2012-13

Responsible for designing the curriculum and teaching undergraduate courses in Public International Law, Competition Law, and Law, Poverty and Development.

Associate, Economic Laws Practice, New Delhi, India **

2011-12

Leading a team of junior economists and lawyers in the competition/trade practice and reporting directly to the partner, on various mandates including:

- Advising one of the world's foremost internet search engine companies on competition law compatibility of proposed online marketing projects and an ongoing abuse of dominance proceeding before the Competition Commission of India. Recommended changes to the marketing methods of the company to avoid legal liability within India, which was adopted by the company while launching their products.
- Drafting of pleadings and instructing senior counsel in various competition law cases before the Competition Commission of India, including cartels in cement and pharmaceutical industry, and abuse of dominance in the media aggregation and sports industry. My inputs were particularly instrumental in adapting jurisprudence from EU competition law practice to the Indian context.
- Advising governments on the compatibility of their domestic measures with international trade law.
- Involved in a project relating to the preparation of a database on non-tariff measures in India for International Trade Centre, Geneva.

Graduate Solicitor, Herbert Smith Freehills LLP, London, UK

2008-10

As a graduate solicitor, I was placed in four different departments in the London offices of the firm: tax, competition law, infrastructure/projects and litigation. Some of the key assignments where I made notable contributions included:

- Assisting the litigation team working on a high-profile dispute between a private contractor and the London Underground by managing the document review for the case as well as drafting parts of the pleadings.
- Assisting various teams drafting key contracts for various infrastructure development projects in different geographies including India, the Middle East and the UK; providing legal assistance on a World Bank project for drafting the transport policy of a developing country.
- Working on an abuse of dominance proceeding before the Office of Fair Trading (UK) in the online education software sector.

- Working on tax-restructuring for various M&A transactions in the UK.
- Was actively involved in preparing a petition filed before the Inter-American Commission on Human Rights for a death row convict based in Trinidad and Tobago.

* Admitted to the bar in India and qualified as a solicitor in the UK
